Dayton, Col. McElroy and several others had a love feast at headquarters when this result was announced. Expressions of mutual congratulation abounded.

A Soldier Band. "These old soldiers have made this government of today a possible thing," Mr. Dayton said, holding Lieut. Santelmann's hand in both his own. "If they had not done their part there would be no Marine Band. But there is one, I'm glad to say, and he is going to be where he belongs during a reunion of these old 'vets.' "

"There seems to me to be something par-ticularly appropriate in this arrangement," said Mr. Warner. "The Marine Band is a soldier band and it is to do honor to vet-erans of a hundred battlefields each. The encampment is thus given additional sig-nificance by the presence of the marines. It is also assured mighty fine music on every occasion of great importance to the encampment—the religious meeting of Sun-day; the camp fire and dedication of Camp Roosevelt of Monday; the reception at the ension bureau and the general reception of Puesday; the parade of Wednesday, and all the other large meetings in which the vet-erans will have a particular interest."

Lieut. Santelmann Concurs. Lieut. Santelmann concurred in all the others said. "We are soldiers," he observed, "and we are glad to do every honor to the soldiers of the civil war. As Mr. Dayton says, they made our band a possibility. But they did a great deal more than that, and we are not thinking of our organization when we offer to play as the official band of the encampment. We consider the service an honor to ourselves and we undertake it gladly. A small section of our band is already engaged for the Wednesday parade. Mr. Warner and the assistant secretary have assured me that contract can be obviated. So we are all of us pleased at the prospect of furnishing the very best music of which we are capable as our contribution to the encamp-

Request for Searchlights.

Representative Dayton also sent the following letter to Secretary W. H. Moody. with equal assurances that his request would be granted:

"Referring to the conversation of Mr. Warner and myself with you yesterday regarding searchlights for use during the coming encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic, permit me to request that four large searchlights be sent to the Washington navy yard during the said encampment, under such regulations as may be prescribed by your department. It will be desirable to have these searchlights by September 25 in order that proper arrangements may be made to place them in posi-

These lights will all be used for the fllumination of the dome of the Capitol and will make possible the carrying out of an elaborate scheme of illumination that hinges on the securing of these lights.

APPLICATION DENIED.

Large Stands in Front of White House Opposed.

Acting Secretary Sanger of the War Department has approved the report of Col. Bingham, the engineer officer in charge of public buildings and grounds, denying the application of the committee in charge of the arrangements for the coming reunion of the Grand Army of the Republic for partment is due to the opposition of President Roosevelt to the erection of any stands in front of the White House except a small reviewing stand in the street immediately in front of the mansion. It is stated that the President's opposition is due to the controversy that arose between the authorities of the War Department and the local committee in charge of the arrangements for the inauguration of President McKinley in March, 1901, over the payment of damages to the gate piers at the entrance to Executive avenue caused by the accidental destruction by fire of the large stand erected at that point.

The action of the War Department is contained in an official communication received by Mr. Appleton P. Clark, jr., chairman of the local committee on stands, from Acting Secretary Sanger, in which the rea-sons are given for the disapproval of the application for permission to erect the stands in front of the White House. This letter is withheld from the public for the present at the request of Mr. Clark, who, it is said, has hopes of securing a reversal of the action of the department on the return of Secretary Root from Europe next

ASSOCIATION FORMED.

Organization to Secure Memorial to

John W. Ross. An organization of what is to be known as the Ross Memorial Association was effeeted at the District building yesterday afternoon. The heads of the various Distriet departments met and decided upon this action. The suggestion that a memorial association be formed was made at the last gathering of the clerks and was favorably received. At the meeting yesterday Major Sylvester was chosen as president. Mr. Hopewell H. Darneille, the District assessor, was elected vice president; Mr. Robert W. Dutton, chief engineer of the fire department, secretary; Mr. Moncure Burke, assistant secretary, and Mr. E. G. Davis, the collector of taxes, treas-

The object of the association is to secure a memorial to the late Commissioner John W. Ross. A committee was appointed to obtain estimates of the cost of a bronze bust or a bronze tablet containing a profile of Mr Ross. The offer of Mrs. R. L. Hoxie, wife of Major Hoxie of the army, so well known here, to model a bust of Mr. Ross as her contribution to the memorial, was read, and a letter was sent to her thanking her for the very generous offer. Mrs. Hoxie was asked if she would still be willing to do the work in the event it was decided to erect a tablet in the municipal building in-

A committee on hy-laws, consisting of Messrs. Svivester. Dutton and Francis Nye, was appointed and will report at the next meeting of the association, to be held a week from Monday.

No subscriptions will be solicited by the association. Notices will be issued that those who wish to become members of the association and contribute to the fund may do so by applying to the treasurer. Mr Davis, at the District building.

NAVAL OFFICIALS MUCH DISAP-POINTED.

The Brooklyn and the San Francisco in a Bad Condition-A Thorough Investigation.

Naval officials are much disappointed at what now promises to be the enforced absence of several of our finest warships from the great winter maneuvers in the Caribbean sea. It is now stated as a settled fact that the big cruiser Brooklyn will have to be placed out of commission, and will not be able to take part in the maneuvers. The Brooklyn will be docked at the New York yard and her repairs are expected to consume the greater part of three months. An official of the department emphasizes the statement that the extensive repair work which must be performed on the big cruiser is not solely the result of her recent accident, but is made necessary by the previous bad condition of the Brooklyn's inner bottom, which, he said, is weak and cor-roded, and which for some time past has needed thorough attention.

In this view of the case it is probable that the court of inquiry, headed by Rear Admiral Watson, which was ordered yesterday in the case of the Brooklyn will extend its investigations beyond the circumstances attending the accident during the maneu-

The San Francisco's Condition.

The cruiser San Francisco, which is due at Norfolk in a few days, and which has been attached to the European station, is also reported to be in bad condition. It has been reported to the department that her inner bottom also is very weak, that the bracing under her boilers has buckled and the cement in her double bottoms has cracked.

The weakness of the hull beneath the boilers is said to have caused her b flers to settle, and to have brought a strain on the steam pipe sufficient to cause grave anxlety. It was understood that the Francisco was to form part of Admiral Crowninshield's squadron in the big maneuvers, but it is now probable that she can take no part in them, and will have to be thoroughly overhauled. As in all cases where serious injuries are sustained by our warships, the Navy Department may o der court of inquiry in the case of the San

Another vessel which is barred from participation in the Caribbean exercises is the cruiser New York, flagship of Rear Admiral Rodgers, on the Asiatic station, which has been ordered to San Francisco.

The department expects to place a number of vessels in commission in the next few months, with a view to getting some of them in shape for the maneuvers. The Detroit will go into commission about September 20, the Wasp about October 1, the Newark and Texas about November 3, and the Maine a little later in that month, and the good reason for a shorter time. LIFE ON BOARD THE TRAIN DETAILS OF SACKING SENT BY GEORGE HAAS, PLATE PRINTER WHEN HE TRAVELS.

A Pleasure to the Newspaper Men- Foreigners Treated Without Considera-His Consideration for the People.

Traveling with President Roosevelt on his rips throughout the country is a pleasure to newspaper men. Something of the spirit of the man himself is shared by his fellow travelers of the newspaper profession. The President is not only a delightful traveling companion, but he is frank and fair with the newspaper correspondents. He tells them many interesting things when opportunity throws them together on the train going from one point to another. Frequently the President's remarks are not for publication, but the correspondents enjoy hearing the chief executive talk and relate his experiences in civil or political life.

The understanding among well-posted newspaper men is that, no matter what the The same understanding existed in the profession with President McKinley, and it was an exceedingly rare thing to see any remark attributed to the late President. Whenever this was the case it was due to some country reporter overhearing a remark. No legitimate newspaper reporter or correspondent has violated the desire of President Roosevelt, except one, and not one ever deliberately broke over the rules laid down by President McKinley. A certain New York newspaper man went aboard the President's train on the recent New England trip, immediately after the accident in which Craig lost his life, to ask for a statement of the accident. The President nade a statement, and seeing a few new faces among the newspaper men, said: "No: a word of this will be used as coming from me, I am sure." He repeated this request, and it was heard by all. Yet one man violated the request. He won't have opportunity to do so again. Newspaper readers who at any time see what purports to be an interview with the President may be reasonably certain that it is a fake.

Sleeps Well on the Train.

President Roosevelt has been accustomed to "roughing it" too many years not to be able to sleep on a train running at a swift gait. He never goes to bed until near midnight when out on his trips and sits up until somewhere near that hour talking over business affairs with Secretary Cor telyou. He has no time for that during the day, as the local committees of cities he is visiting keep him busy riding around or making speeches. On the trains in the day time he is constantly having to make his appearance on the rear platform in response the demands of crowds at small stations d there is little time to do business then. Most of the time, also, republican senators or representatives, or other prominent persons are guests of the President from one to another through their territory and the President entertains them in his car. his recent southern trip the President had opportunity to spend one night at a hotel, but he said the car was good enough for him and remained aboard. He sleeps about as late as he does when at his home in the White House, and just as soundly, too. The only occupants of the car with him are Secretary Cortelyou and Assistant Secretary Barnes. They take their meals with him. At dinner, the time taken is generally about an hour and ten minutes, never less than an hour unless there is Looking Into the Wrong Cars.

An amusing thing to railroad and newspaper men with the President is the way the people congregated at stations do in looking for the President when the train rolls up. Nearly all of them invariably fix their glances on the first coach as the train and they remain standing, not knowing what to do. The President's coach is alfirst is that he is more accessible to the crowds and that it is more convenient getting in and out. The next is that it is the safest place on the train in case of accident. Rear coaches of a derailed train or one colliding with an obstruction seldom suffer as seriously as the first coaches. For observation purposes the rear coach is the most satisfactory. Often people stand look-ing almlessly about when the train comes to a standstill until the crowd gets to moving to the rear, or some one tells the people the President is in the last car. President Roosevelt is obliging and courteous to people who live in small towns through which the train skims without a top. If he hears them cheer or knows that ey are congregated at the depot he steps the rear platform and bows pleasantly nd graciously. Some times a single engine on a side track will shriek a welcome to the President as he speeds by. Because he likes railroad men the President will respond to the salute by walking to the rear of his car and bowing to the engineer and

Some Familiar Phrases. President Roosevelt has a few homely but timely words and phrases that he uses when he is getting right down to a heart to heart talk with his audience. As a fine defense yet to be examined when The Star's scholar and a versatile writer, he has a splendid command of English and never has occasion to repeat a word or phrase in his various speeches unless by his own desire and because he knows the expressions are understood and go right home better than high-flown words. One of his favorite expressions is that when a man won't "stay put" he is a poor man. The expresone in domestic use throughout the United States and especially in the south. To "stay put" is to remain where you are placed and do your duty without flinching. I don't care the snap of my finger," is another expression of the President in de scribing his lack of regard for this thing or that kind of a man.

The President talks occasionally to his hearers about the manly qualities in man and holds up his ideals of what a man should be. He places "honesty, courage and common sense" as the fundamental es-sentials of a good man. Without these three things a man isn't complete. "A man who is worth his salt" and "a man who can bull his own weight" are plain expressions with the President that mean something to an audience of North Carolina mountain-eers or to the general public. "A man who has the stuff in him" is sometimes employed by the President. Mr. Rooseveit has a high opinion of the cardinal virtues of the American citizen and believes that no higher or more magnificent type of man lives than in this country. For the benefit of the weaker brethren the President oceasionally talks on the civic qualities of man and tells what he thinks real American citizen. His speeches on these subjects always strike responsive tion-Money Demanded by the O Victorious Rebels.

Mr. Louis Goldschmidt, the consul at La Guayra. Venezuela, has reported under date of August 16 to the Department of State in regard to the revolution in Venezuela as follows.

"Advised on August 11 that the city of Barcelona has been surrendered to the revolutionists after seven days and eight nights of hard fighting in the streets. The | death. city is in ruins. Many houses and establishments were sacked without consideration to foreigners.

"On August 13, 1902, the consular agent at Barcelona advised me that after the surrender the sacking continued and that the search of houses was then going on and money was being demanded of foreigners, that no guarantee to the safety of lives and property was given and that the situation was very critical. On the 16th the Cincinnati returned to La Guayra from Barcelona, and Captain McLean confirmed the several messages from Consular Agent Biaz; that the fighting in the streets of Barcelona had been serious and that many business and private houses had been pillaged by both parties, but that the town was then comparatively quiet. He also reported that both Barcelona and its port, Guanta, were occupied by the revolution-

"Owing to this last victory of the revolutionists over the government there remains but one port now (Cumana) in the hands of the government on the whole coast east of La Guayra."

Mr. Haas had been ill for two weeks, not being able to go to his place of employment, and about 3 o'clock this morning he left his bed room on the second floor of his home and went to the first floor, where he remained for a few minutes. He started to return to the second floor, and when about half way up the steps he lost his balance and fell backward down the steps, striking, on his head. Mrs. Haas, who was awakened by the noise of her husband falling down the steps, looked in his bed room and finding he was not there went down stairs, where she found his lifeless body at the foot of the steps. She immediately sent word to her daughter, Mrs. Edward Volgt of 725 7th street northwest, who went to her mother's home in company with her husband, steps being taken meanwhile to care for the body. Resided in Washington Since 1861.

Mr. Haas was seventy-six years of age. and came to Washington in 1861 from New York city, where he was employed as a plate printer with the Homer Lee Bank Note Company, to accept a position at the bureau of engraving and printing, where ne had since been employed. His wife and three children, the latter being Mrs. Ed-ward Voigt of 725 7th street northwest, George Haas, the engraver, near the corner of Pennsylvania avenue and 11th street northwest, and Charles Haas, who is a watchmaker, survive him.

The funeral will be held at the residence of his daughter, 725 7th street, Monday morning at 9 o'clock, and interment will be made at Prospect Hill cemetery.

Edward Pace, colored, was arraigned before Judge Bundy this morning on a charge of being drunk and disorderly on 7th street northwest yesterday afternoon. A fine of The following ministers, delegates to the $10, with the equivalent of thirty days in the workhouse, was imposed upon the prisoner. Pace was arrested shortly after the noon hour yesterday, and placed alone in a cell at the second precinct station.

When other offenders were brought to the station house about 7 o'clock Pace was moved to cell No. 2, which was also occupied by Joseph Dovle, an old soldier, who under arrest for a minor Shortly after the change was made the officers heard Doyle calling for help, and when they reached the cell they found Pace hanging to the cell door with one of his undergarments tied about his neck and around the bolt of the door, trying to strangle himself. When the officers cut him loose he was almost choked to death. Pace was taken to the Homeopathic Hospital, where he was restored to consciousness, and several hours later he was returned to the station house, where a guard was placed over him during the rest of the night. The man would give no reason for his attempt to take his own life, and refused to discuss the matter. Cell No. 2 is becoming known as "sul-cide's cell," as several prisoners confined therein within the last two months have

WILL CIRCLE THE WORLD.

Two Young Men Start on Globe-Trotting Tour.

Morris M. Frankel and William Winkelman, eighteen and nineteen years old, respectively, arrived in Washington last evening on a walk around the world. These globe trotters will remain in the city for one week, during which time they will procure passports from the foreign consuls here and letters of greeting from the State Department officials. The boys have written to President Roosevelt in reference to their trip and expect to receive an answer from him during their stay here. Frankel and Winkelman started their globe walk from the City Hall building in New York city August 18. On their way to this city they stopped a week at Phila-delphia and a week at Baltimore. Leaving here they will go to Richmond, Va., then to New Orleans, La., thence to San Francisco, Cal., where they will take passage on an ocean liner for Honolulu. From Honoulu they will sail for Australia, thence to Manila, thence to Asia, landing at Hong Kong. They will then wend their way through India, Afghanistan, Persia, Arabia, across the Red sea to Africa, then through Europe and across the Atlantic Ocean to New York. The boys expect to complete their tour in from five to six years, and if they are successful and com-plete their journey they will be rewarded by a prize of $5,000 each by a New York daily. They are also to receive large prizes from private individuals.

Frankel is a native of New York and is a graduate of the City College of that city. He can speak French, German and English fluently and understands Itlaian. Winkel man is a native of Russia and has traveled quite extensively through Europe and South America. He speaks English, Span-ish and Roumanian. While in this city they will stop at 738 6th street northwest.

Special Dispatch to The Evening Star.

NEW YORK, September 13 .- In the early London speculation American shares were fractionally improved over our closing figures of last night, and in the later dealings there these stocks showed advances of from one-quarter to seven-eighths per cent. Consols for both accounts were one-sixteenth lower. In the local stock exchange initial trading was extremely dull, with prices fractionally higher on improvement noted in the London market and reports of warmer weather throughout the corn belt. These two factors were used to steady the market at the start, and after the first half hour's trading efforts were made to rally the market. There was a good deal of hesitation on the part of the traders, who still felt uneasiness over possible unfavorable monetary developments. Commission houses, too, were very poorly supplied with regard to buying orders, though it must also be said that they were not offering stocks in any quantity. Foreign houses were only moderate buyers.

Active shares were extremely irregular, with losses and gains of from ½ to 1 per cent at intervals until after the first hour of trading, when there was a show of returning confidence on the announcement that the Secretary of the Treasury intended to anticipate the quarterly interest, amounting to about $5,500,000, on the 2 per cent bonds of 1930 and the 4 per cent bonds of 1907, the interest on which falls due October 1. The payments thus made will be about $3,500,000 in this city, and the method of relief is considered a very quick one, as the money is pald over the counter of the subtreasury and can almost immediately enter the banks and become a part of their reserves Foreign exchange also developed fresh weakness and rumors of important en-which also tended to strengthen the market and invite traders to overlook the unfavorable bank statement. In the late trading prices generally improved smartly, St. Paul and Missouri Pacific stocks showing the most advance and were said to have received better inside support today than The bank statement follows: Reserve decreased, $3,381,975; loans decreased, $6,875,- creased, $1.220,700; deposits decreased, $14,-628,900; circulation increased, $702,500. The statement shows that the banks have lost in cash $7,139,200. The decreases in deposits and in the loans, however, favorably modify the loss in cash, and the net resul is a decrease in surplus reserve of $3,381,975. The market closed substantially higher than yesterday, but this may have been the result of the covering of some short con-tracts put out in the past few days, as there was still a feverish look to speculation under the surface, and some uncertainties as to what developments may occur next week.

Government bonds were unchanged; railroad bonds quiet. Total sales of stocks, 300,200 shares; bonds, $1,127,000.
